-Spectator Notes-

This weekend the Carmel Work Center will publish a book of photographs by Carmelite Steve Crouch. The book contains 32 pictures, about the size of The Spectator cover shots. About a third of them have appeared as Spectator covers.

Folks over Pacific Grove way evidently don't like the idea that the Cork 'n' Bottle is going to put up a store at the edge of the city. The official notice by the state Board of Equalization has been torn down from the site at the corner of David and Forest avenues.

Looks as though the building boom on the Monterey Peninsula is far from over. Seems that 200 units are to be put up between the airport and the Salinas highway. A San Francisco outfit is behind the venture. They acquired the 150-acre site from Del Monte Properties.

Gladys Johnston has a new man on her real estate office staff. George Zamm, who lives on Carmel Point, retired about a year ago from the candy business in Sacramento, but decided he'd like to get back to work. Gladys is off this weekend to Arrowhead Springs for a directors' meeting of the California Real Estate Association.

Speaking of Gladys, it is rumored that she will open a branch office in Monterey in the near future.

While we're on real estate, Authoress Betty MacDonald of "Egg and I" fame has been around these parts and reportedly looking over Carmel Valley property.

Conum Jackson, who has had wide business experience, added a new job to his list - contracting. When the carpenters went on strike, he became a contractor and Taylor and Vial, the contractors who were supposed to do his remodeling of the old post office, are now working for him as carpenters.

Bob Read, manager of the Hill Theatre, has had word that the proceeds ($130) from the Susan Porter readings performance have been spent by CARE. They report disbursements as follows: 2 packages of food to Korea, 1 each to Austria and Germany, a plow to Pakistan and a plow to Greece, 2 sets of children's books to France and 1 set to Japan. It would appear that all concerned with the benefit may take pride.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Bartlett of Carmel are the proud owners of a pink lawn seen in the May number of American Home Magazine. The illustration was from a color transparency by Donthea and Vemona Chalmers.

Fred Farr reports, as an attender, that the Carmel Cooperative Nursery School picnic last Sunday was a tremendous success. All kinds of parents, children, and hamburgers.

Flights of Fancy, a group formed to promote a James Broughton film, will give a showing of Broughton's previous films at Hill Theatre on Sunday at 4:30. They hope to convert well-wishing contributors to the cause of Broughton's work... which has been critically acclaimed (The Saturday Review of Literature is about the most impressive quote they offer in their brochure). The film will be made, contributions permitting, in England. There is a photograph on the cover of the brochure of Mr. Broughton. He is seated on a chair, staring directly at the camera, with what can best be called an elfin expression. Underneath, the Manchester Guardian is quoted: "Mr. Broughton is, in the most affectionate sense of the word, an odd bird." The English are hard at work raising £500... and Flights hopes to match the sum.

Village Week*P.O. JOB WIDE OPEN

Now that the mighty leaders in Washington have thrown out the results of the examination for the postmastership of Carmel, applications for another civil service examination are being accepted. The applications must be in Washington by June 10, meaning they must be mailed from here by June 6 or 7.

The mix-up at the post office has resulted in delaying the appointment of a postmaster here since Ernest Bixler resigned last year. In the first examination held, Fred Mylar, assistant postmaster, was placed first among the applicants. Acting postmaster Alfred G. Mollner also passed the examination.

Mollner has the backing of the county Democratic Central Committee. Mylar is a Republican.

The President can throw out the results of the examination, as was done in this case. Or he can appoint any one of the top three applicants passing the test. However, if a veteran is included in the top three, the President must state in writing why he did not appoint the veteran if he chose a non-veteran who ranked lower on the test. The president is not obligated to appoint the veteran.

Mylar is a veteran and Mollner is not.

RENT CONTROL HEARING

The Carmel city council was fully informed at the rent decontrol hearing Wednesday night, but decided to postpone a decision until June 4. Mayor Horace Lyon explained after a recess that the council felt it must study the information presented to it in detail before deciding.

Arguments in favor of decontrol of rents were led by Enos Fouratt, chairman of the Carmel realtors' board, supported by several board members. The arguments consisted of demonstrating that there are numerous unoccupied houses for rent in the area, making rent controls unnecessary.

The case for controls was presented by Navy and Army personnel. Admiral Ernest E. Herrmann, head of the Navy School, led the discussion. Several military and naval officers offered statistics to show that while houses may be available, many were too high priced for the officers. Both "sides" acknowledged ARMED FORCES DAY, the dedication of Ord as a permanent Army installation, and the presentation of a monument to the Fort by Monterey County citizens were all rolled into one last Sunday. Seen before the plaque of the monument are: Lieutenant Colonel Frank P. Haydon, Air Forces liaison officer at the Army Language School; Rear Adm. Ernest E. Herrmann, superintendent of the Naval Postgraduate School in Monterey; Major General Robert T. Frederick, USA (ret.), former Fort Ord commanding general; Deputy Secretary of Defense William C. Foster, who delivered the day's main address, and Major General Robert B. McClure, present Fort Ord commander. -- Sgt. Paul Simons, U.S.A., photo.

ged that there has been close cooperation between the real estate offices and the armed forces in securing accommodations.

Admiral Herrmann said that the housing situation was due to get worse due to the enlargement of Fort Ord and the Naval School. He said he expects the Naval School to double in size soon. It was pointed out by the realtors that a total of 3,039 housing units (including those built now and those authorized) will ease the housing pressure greatly even if the enlargement comes.

The real argument behind the discussion, we believe, was never brought out at the hearing. The Navy and Army officers are afraid that if Carmel is decontrolled, then the rest of the Peninsula will follow suit. This the armed forces feel would work a real hardship on the Army and Navy officers.

However, if this is the reason behind the opposition to rent decontrol in Carmel, the citizens of Carmel have the right to ask why Carmel should have controls if they are not necessary. Carmel as a separate community should be treated separately-- not as just a part of the Monterey

Peninsula.*NEW BUSINESS ASSOCIATION OFFICERS

The Carmel Valley Business and Professional Association elected new officers at their annual membership meeting last Tuesday. Thomas A. Verga is the new president, Santos Corona, vice-president, Fred V. Whalen, secretary, and Clyde D. Zumwalt, treasurer. The new board of directors consists of Alvie Byers, Frank V. Porter, and John Wibby.

AWVS EARN $1800

A profit of $1,800 has been reported on the AWVS Garden Tour of last week. The proceeds will be donated to the Visiting Nurse Association, according to Mrs. Frank E. La Cauza, chairman of the AWVS.

CARMELITES IN MPC DRAMA TONIGHT

Jim Hare, a Monterey Peninsula College student from Carmel, is playing the leading role of Petruchio in Shakespeare's comedy "Taming of the Shrew" which is going to be presented by the college tonight and tomorrow, at 8:30 p.m. in the Pacific Grove Auditorium.

Other Carmel students playing in the "Shrew" are Delfo Giglio, Lillian Lee, and Margaret Rigdon.

Franklin Gray, another Carmel resident and chairman of the drama department, is director of the play. The student director is Doug Zug.

Students playing in the "Taming of the Shrew" are Billie Bolton as Katherine the Shrew; Nora Kneass as Bianca, Kate's sister, and Doug Zug, playing Baptista, the father of the two girls.

Jim Hare is the Veronese gentleman, suitor and later husband of Kate. His servants are: Ron Sherriffs as Grumio; Joy Birdwell as Curtis; James Nally as Nathaniel; Lillian Lee as Sugarsop; Richard Corrigan as Phillip, and William Flodberg as Joseph.

Daniel Perettie plays the role of Christopher Sly, the old drunkard. Richard Corrigan has another role as a lord; his page is John Mehringer.

Delfo Giglio plays Bianca's fiance Lucentio, and Don Barr is Vincentio, Lucentio's father. Gremio, elderly suitor of Bianca, is James Jones. Another suitor of Bianca is Hortensio, portrayed by Clarence Micalizio. Lucentio's servants are Dominic DiMare as Tranio, and Bob Chandler as Biondello. Two huntsmen are played by James Nally and William Flodberg.

Faith Ellis plays a widow who later marries Hortensio. Richard Corrigan in addition to his other roles portrays a tailor. Two acrobats are played by Jerry Googins and Adrian de la Rosa. Margaret Rigdon and Mrs. Margaret Mulé play two women servants at Baptista's house.

Tickets for the play are now on sale at Browse Around Music Shop at 6th and Dolores in Carmel, Abinante's Music Store at 425 Alvarado street in Monterey, and Byer's Drug Store, 565 Lighthouse avenue in Pacific Grove.

MARION DOWNS TO SING

Marion Downs, young lyric soprano, will be heard in concert on Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock at the First Methodist Church in Salinas. Her accompanist will be Robert M. Forbes of Carmel. Her program will include selections by Handel, Negro spirituals, and Italian art songs. There is no admission charge but a silver offering will be received.

BACH FESTIVAL MAIL ORDERS OPEN

Requests for season tickets for Carmel's Fifteenth Bach Festival have been coming in since February. Many are from pilgrims to the Festival who travel from British Columbia and all parts of California yearly to hear the week-long program of music. Many are from festival-goers who write that for years they have heard of the Carmel Festival and are making plans to include it this July 14-20.

While mail orders may be sent in to the Festival post office Box 282 any time, the box office at Graham's Music Store on Mission and Sixth does not open until June 1. Local subscribers who wish to retain their same seats should write in immediately.

Gastone Usigli, conductor of the Festival, is meeting the Festival Chorus each Tuesday night, and reports that work on the "B Minor Mass," which

WILDFLOWER TALK

C. Edward Graves of Carmel will speak at Sunset Auditorium Tuesday evening, May 27, at 8 o'clock, on the subject of Wildflowers of the Desert. Graves recently returned from a 2800 mile trip through the Mohave and Colorado deserts and a portion of the coast of Mexico approximately 150 miles south of the border. His trip was planned to visit wildflowers at their peak of blooming. Due to the extensive rainfall this spring the desert was carpeted with an abundance of color which has not been equalled in years.

Mr. Graves will show kodachromes which he took on this trip and which are entirely new to Peninsula friends. The outstanding excellence of his photography in this area of natural history needs no introduction to Carmel audiences.

played a polish and proficiency which left one wishing the season were just beginning instead of ending.

Two conductors shared the podium, Lorell McCann directing the first half of the program and Clifford Anderson the second. Under Mr. McCann's direction, the orchestra got off to a fine start with a sprightly, well-paced reading of the Merry Wives of Windsor Overture by Nicolai.

Handel's Sonata in F Major, which followed, was given a beautiful performance and was, in this reviewer's opinion, the highlight of the evening. The ensemble playing was excellent and in the fugue-like second movement the tonal balance was splendid. Mr. McCann had the orchestra completely under control and seemed to have a thorough understanding and grasp of the music.

Two lighter pieces followed, Glazounov's Valse de Concert and the Evening Prayer and Dream Pantomime from Hansel and Gretel by Humperdinck. The Glazounov was not too effective, perhaps due to insufficient rehearsal. The tempos tended to sag from time to time and let down this essentially buoyant music.

The charming Prayer and Pantomime showed off to great advantage the orchestra's brass section. The improvement shown by this section over their last performance was highly gratifying. They displayed a cohesion and firm attack previously lacking.

The Great Gate at Kiev by Moussorgsky, with its tremendous climax was an exciting and well-modulated conclusion to Mr. McCann's half of the program.

An original composition by Walter Kelsey, who plays violin in the orchestra, opened Mr. Anderson's share of the program. A tone poem, called "Song of Night," this pleasantly evocative music contained a lovely melody which was handled in admirable fashion by the brass section. One would guess that Mr. Kelsey, should he choose, could find commercial success in the type of compositions Leroy Anderson turns out with such facility. Writing melodies which appeal on first hearing is no small talent.

The Granados Intermezzo next played sounded lovely in parts, but the over-all effect was disjointed. Here again, insufficient rehearsal may have been the cause. As the music is not particularly significant, one cannot regret this too much.

The Haydn Symphony no. 103, which concluded the evening, was a distinguished performance. Concertmaster Patrick Coleman's incisive playing of the solo violin role in the second movement was an outstanding feature. Mr. Coleman is to be congratulated for the general excellence of the violin section, by all odds the orchestra's greatest asset.

The audience, which unfortunately did not fill more than two-thirds of the auditorium, was very enthusiastic in their reception of the entire concert with particularly warm applause greeting Mr. Kelsey's work. It is sincerely hoped that those hearing last Tuesday's concert will spread the good word and help the orchestra achieve a much greater attendance and support next season. A more desirable community organization would be hard to imagine.

"INNOCENTS" BEGINS TONIGHT

"The Innocents," William Archibald's new play based on Henry James' terrifying suspense story "The Turn of the Screw," opens this Friday evening, May 23, at the Wharf Theatre and will play Friday, Saturday and Sunday nights. This will be one of the first productions of this play in American community theatre. The New York production, with Beatrice Straight, won unanimous critical praise. Brooks Atkinson, drama critic for the New York Times, called it "one of the very few horror plays that adults can both admire and enjoy."

It is the story of a young governess who is sent, as her first employment, to take charge of a precocious little girl in an eerie Victorian mansion. The governess gradually learns that the four people living in this house are haunted by fears and phantoms, and that evil and innocence can be inextricable. It builds through scenes that the Journal American hailed as com-standing. The most recent fruit of his labors was in last week's New Yorker, to whose austere pages he has come from poster painting days at Salinas Junior College.

Born in King City, Eldon went to high school there, and after junior college to Chouinard Art Institute in Los Angeles. It was while studying art there (all kinds of art, except cartooning) that he met Virginia Conroy, who is now Mrs. Dedini, an artist of considerable stature, a member of both the Carmel and San Francisco Art associations.

The first sales Dedini had were to Esquire and were made while he was still in school, a success that he enlarged upon later in Los Angeles while holding down a job as a scene artist at Universal Studios. His job there involved making rough sketches of sets with actors placed in them. These were the basis for the final, finished set designs.

After two years with Universal, Dedini switched to the Walt Disney studios, feeling that they offered work closer to cartooning which was his real love. Here he worked with the story department, sketching rough plans of cartoons, dreaming up ideas, and putting on paper story plots and rough plans for cartoon films. At the same time he was, at nights, doing cartoons for Esquire. He was soon on contract with the Men's Magazine . . . pledged to put out a staggering 100 ideas a month.

Two years ago, with the Esquire contract in hand, and another from the New Yorker, Dedini decided to devote full time to cartooning, and with Virginia, built the home they now live in in Lower Hatton Fields.

A spacious modernistic house, the Dedinis' home is full of their work, with Virginia laboring away in one room and Eldon in his studio. They keep to regular hours with their painting and cartooning, and both seem to have a prodigious output.

Virginia is now, after a period of muted colors and quiet themes, experimenting with vivid color, and the palette knife technique of using paint thickly . . . a practice she says is "effective but expensive."

As one of the mainstays of the Esquire humor department, Eldon puts forth not only a large number of cartoons, but handles special assignments such as captioning picture stories with a humorous twist, and doing whole double page cartoon spreads. The annual "Christmas Cards You'll Never Receive" is his work--drawings, ideas and all.

Working more and more toward political and social comment themes, Dedini is growing a little tired of his "boy-girl" gags. It's a sad thing for his admirers, since he does them extremely well, but his recent work commenting on world events and human nature promises even better things for the future.

Asked about the pressure that must be brought to bear on a contract cartoonist, Dedini disclaims any worry about it. His ideas are all self-thought up, and he does a prodigious amount of reading, drawing ideas from it as he goes. In about two weeks now, he'll begin to think about "Christmas Cards You'll Never . . ." for next Christmas. It's a safe bet that they'll be among the best, and funniest, any of us will see.

ENTER YOUR PET IN DEL MONTE DOG SHOW

Local residents who would like to enter their dog in the Del Monte Kennel Club Dog Show June 7 need not fear the show professionals (both dog and human) who will be entered. The club has made it easy for Peninsula residents to show their dogs although they have no show experience.

Running concurrently with the big show will be a show for local dogs--a show within a show. The rules for the local class exclude professional handlers to encourage inexperienced owners to enter their pets.

As an additional aid, the club is holding training class at the Carmel High School football field Sunday afternoon to demonstrate the fundamentals of exhibiting. The club

Attention Ladies!

Cakes lined up--each with a number. Judges looking, breaking off pieces, tasting. The winner? Number 4--a cake with a wonderful, glossy chocolate frosting.

This was at the Women's Club last night. Then Duke Thomas stepped up--his cake was Number 4! Seems his missus was laid up, so Duke took over--and won!

Here's Duke's prize-winning frosting recipe:

Melt 3 squares unsweetened chocolate in double boiler. Remove from heat, add 1 1/4 cups sifted confectioner's sugar and 2 1/4 lbs. hot water and blend. Add 3 egg yolks, one at a time, beating well after each. Add

4 lbs. butter, beating thoroughly after each. Fill and frost 8-inch, 2-layer cake.

From where I sit, we all have different abilities and tastes . . . and these differences are sometimes surprising. Duke bakes prize-winning cakes. My wife, for example, can beat most any man at checkers. Same when it comes to beverages--you may like coffee or tea while I prefer a refreshing glass of beer. But let's not have any "half-baked" ideas that people are all the same--or should be.

IT TAKES A LOT OF DOING

To Provide a Safe,
Dependable Water Supply

Water, of course, is free to all, but gathering, storing, purifying, and delivering it requires thought, effort, time, equipment, and money... the reason for your water bill.

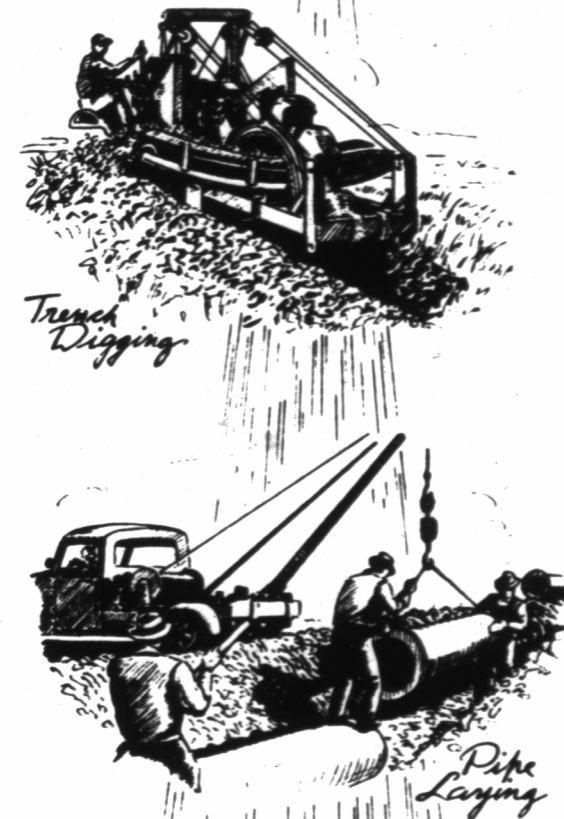

However, this water bill, though a charge, actually represents a saving to just about everyone. For example, if you were to drill your own well (after finding the right place to drill it), equip it with pumping machinery, and build a storage tank in your backyard, you would run into considerable expense.

Or, if you should load a truck with barrels, take them to a spring or river, fill up and haul the water home, you would find the job costly and tiresome. And if, as they do in Bermuda, you installed a roof collecting system (good only when it rains), you would find yourself without water in summer time. And, of course, to the costs of any of these enterprises, you would have to add some medical expense, since water obtained in such ways is not always safe for consumption.

It's not necessary for you to do any of these complicated things... your water system does everything for you, saving you money, time, toil and trouble.

In order to bring cool mountain water to the Monterey Peninsula, your water company maintains more than 300 miles of pipelines, 28 pumping stations, filter plants, storage dams and reservoirs, and two complete laboratories to assure you the finest water possible.

However, investors in company securities must furnish funds for new construction. And the pipe-laying, trench-digging, bulldozing, storage, and maintenance crews... the engineering, testing, meter-reading and accounting staffs are on the job every day seeing to it that you get a continual flow of good safe water... at the lowest possible cost consistent with good management.

Tularcitos voters backed up the school kid generation this week in an overwhelming victory for school bond and school tax issues, which brought out over two and one half times more voters in this local election than in any preceding one... A total of 273 persons kept election board officials at Tularcitos School busy throughout the day, and an extra board member had to be sworn in to handle the volume... Greatest number of votes cast in any previous election were 103... By the time the ballots were counted, the school bond issue had passed by 235 to 31, and the school tax raise by 212 to 54. New school board member Ralph Stean was cleanly elected by a 148 vote count, while Mrs. Sidney Williams was apparent close winner for the remaining position with 124 votes to the 121 of Mrs. Jack Hennessey. Four outstanding absentee ballots which could change this result will be opened today (Friday) when the ballots are canvassed by the school board.

Besides making possible the addition of badly needed extra school rooms, the bonding of the district to its $61,000 limit makes the district eligible for state building aid when more funds are available for the purpose... the tax increase could add 60¢ per hundred to each property owner's tax if this maximum is needed

The Amateur Gardener

GARDENING FOR HEALTH AND HAPPINESS

By CHARLES W. DELANEY

The Garden and Patio Tour of May 14, conducted by the AWVS, was a tremendous success. It was one of the very best organized tours I have ever attended. All of the committees deserve an Oscar for the efficient coordination of every detail of the tour. The selection of gardens and patios was varied and interesting. Many ideas of planting, grouping, and settings were seen in the fourteen homes open to the group.

The lovely cheerful hospitality of the many ladies who worked in the group made the tour very pleasant, and the weather was perfect for the event. The tea and cookies served on the patio of the George Hart estate made a nice break in the extended tour and everyone seemed to enjoy the rest. If the ladies who made those delicious cookies would send us the recipe, I think it would be a grand idea to give it in this column, to recall a very pleasant experience for all who attended.

Each garden opened to the tour would have to be given an entire column to do it justice, so we will just make a few observations of what use was made of plants. A fence was hidden by using echium (jewel plant) in one area and, further on, the potato vine with primroses planted at the base. A very fine combination was seen where tall ferns were used as background with cineraria and polyanthus primrose; this grouping was in deep shade. The exclusive use of perennials and permanent planting was very effective in one garden. The summer annuals are not far enough advanced at this time, but several places had a good display. The roses, where used, were very beautiful and this was just the right time to see them at their best.

Congratulations to the AWVS for a grand show... and let's hope they do it again.

TIMELY HINTS

The dry season is now with us, so do not let your plants suffer from thirst. Feel the ground (not with rubber gloves); if it is dry, give it water.

Rhododendrons, azaleas, and camellias need acid fertilizer once each month from now on.

Perennial seed may be planted now. These will bloom next spring, if started this early you will have very strong plants to set out in the fall.

The nurseries and flower shops have many flats of annual seedlings. If you have a small yard, just buy a few plants and give them some attention in watering and occasional feeding and you will have flowers until winter sets in. Do not buy too many plants and then you will have no disappointments in growing them in your garden.

carmel library notes

Two best-selling novels went into circulation at the library this week-- Agnes Sligh Turnbull's The Gown of Glory, a historical novel, and S.P.Q.R. by Paul Hyde Bonner, a novel of present-day Rome. Two novels dealing with the medical profession are also new this week, East Side General by Frank Slaughter, which is set in a large New York hospital, and Windom's Way by James Ramsey Ullman, a story of a doctor in Southern Asia. Two very popular authors are also represented by new books: Maurice Walsh, who wrote The Small Dark Man, has a book of short stories called Son of a Tinker, and Mary O'Hara, author of My Friend Flicka, has written a historical novel, The Son of Adam Wingate. Mary McCarthy's satirical novel of communist hysteria in a small college, The Groves of Academe, completes this week's additions.

Raymond B. Fosdick, who served as president of the organization from 1936 to 1948, has written The Story of the Rockefeller Foundation. This charitable institution, which was founded in 1909 with a capital of fifty million, has a fabulous record of achievement in widely divergent fields from medical research to support of the Berkshire Music Center.

Alarmed by the growing divorce figure in this country, which this year is expected to reach 800,000, Morris L. Ernst and David Loth have written For Better or Worse. They have assembled numerous case histories of divorced persons and have many suggestions to offer for reform of our divorce laws.

Henry Newman has written a series of biographical sketches of Spokesmen for Ethical Religion. This is in celebration of the 75th anniversary of the founding of Ethical Culture by Felix Adler. His belief that theological belief should be subordinate to ethical striving, or that it's better to be up and doing than down and praying, has won many followers.

The English Past by A. L. Rowse is a series of essays on England's outstanding literary figures-- Milton, D. H. Lawrence, the Brontes, Swift, etc.
